RACE IS ON!

Election filing opens on Nov. 6

By Bryan Marshall
Staff Writer

The 2014 May primary election is still seven months away, but Nov. 6 is the first day for candidates to file to run for office.

Jan. 28 is the deadline to run in the primary, which will include races for many county offices, including judge-executive, sheriff, jailer, clerk, magistrates, coroner and county attorney.

Any eligible resident looking to file can pick up forms at the Grant County Clerk's Office, 107 North Main St., Williamstown.

The clerk's office is open from 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday and 8:30 a.m. to noon Saturdays.

DID YOU KNOW?

- Filing for the May 2014 primary begins Nov. 6 and ends Jan. 28.
- Races include: judge-executive, sheriff, jailer, clerk, magistrate, coroner and county attorney.

For more information, call 824-3321.

"Some of them file soon," said County Clerk Letha Conrad. "Some of them wait until the last day."

Conrad is in her seventh year as clerk, but has worked in the office for 35 years.

She spent 27 years as deputy clerk under three different clerks.

While she could seek a third term, Conrad has decided instead to retire at the end of this year.

"I felt the time was right," Conrad said. "I have a new granddaughter. I'm going to enjoy my granddaughter. I enjoyed getting to meet the public and serving the county. I will miss that."

Judge-executive Darrell Link will make an appointment to fill Conrad's seat for the remainder of the term, which ends Dec. 31, 2014.

Pipeline easement acquisitions begin

By Bryan Marshall
Staff Writer

Bluegrass Pipeline has begun negotiating easements with landowners as it continues progress of the project that will go through a small part of southern Grant County.

Williams and Boardwalk Pipeline Partners, LP, energy infrastructure companies, have partnered to develop the roughly 1,100-mile Bluegrass Pipeline Project, which has drawn the ire of some.

The $2.9 million proposed natural-gas-liquids (NGL) pipeline, which has a targeted in-service date of late 2015, could transport up to 400,000 barrels of natural gas drilling byproducts daily from mining regions northeast of Kentucky to the Gulf Coast.

A map of the pipeline's proposed route shows it would go through parts of southern Grant County in the Corinth area.

NOTEWORTHY

GCHS, WHS BANDS EARN THIRD PLACE IN STATE

The Grant County High School Band finished third in the Kentucky Music Educators Association Class AAAA state championship, while the Williamstown Band of Spirit finished third in the Class A state championship Oct. 26 at Papa John's Cardinal Stadium in Louisville.

Earlier in the day, GCHS competed in the state semi-finals at South Oldham High School.

Among the 16 competing bands, the top four schools moved on to the finals that evening.

Anderson County, who finished second in the finals, placed first in the semi-finals with a score of 93.85. Madisonville-North Hopkins placed second in the semis with a score of 91.6, followed by South Oldham (89.6) in third and Grant County (88.75) in fourth.

"Both performances were outstanding... We were only .1 out of second place. I was ecstatic."

- Chris Hedges
WHS band director

FINAL SCORES:

- WHS Band of Spirit - 84.8
- GCHS Marching Band - 86.9

In every possible way, this was a season defined by the way in which the kids rose to conquer every challenge that was put in front of them.

Williamstown teen smiles through cancer fight

By Bryan Marshall
Staff Writer

Skyler Faulkner isn't one to get sick.

The 17-year-old is in her 13th year of perfect attendance at Williamstown Independent Schools.

She's never had strep throat. No flu.

The high school senior is a picture of clean health.

That all changed three weeks ago.

It all started when Skyler, who had previously discovered she had an irregular heartbeat, noticed a knot on her neck.

She initially didn't think much about it, but when the knot remained several weeks later she showed her mother.

"At first we just thought it was a swollen lymph node from an infection," Skyler said. "We thought my heart problem and that were two different issues."

While antibiotics decreased the knot slightly, it eventually started changing textures.

Searching for answers, Skyler's mom, Deanna Faulkner, a cardiac nurse at St. Elizabeth-Florence, told a doctor at her work the symptoms Skyler was experiencing.

A few weeks later, the doctor pulled Deanna aside and said she may want to consider the possibility that her daughter could have lymphoma.

"So, she looked it up and I had six out of the eight symptoms," Skyler said.

The official diagnosis of Hodgkin's lymphoma came Oct. 14.

"I was just really shocked," Skyler said. "I've never dealt with any kind of sickness before. Then, I was just thought, 'I have to do this. I have to push through.' I know that I can't let it stop me. I've seen cancer survivors all the time so why can't I be one?"

With the news, Deanna dropped everything to be with her Skyler every step of the way.

"She is my only child so my first thought was full attention and treatment immediately," Deanna said. "I have not been

Wood turns 90

Douglas R. Wood celebrated his 90th birthday on Oct. 19 at the home of his daughter, Melissa Schwiegeraht. His wife, Jennie, and his children, Paul of Paducah, Steve of Williamstown and Missy of Dry Ridge and his grandchildren were in attendance to celebrate this milestone. Wood, former owner of Dry Ridge Lumber for over 50 years, has been an outstanding business leader in the Grant County community.

The party was given by his children.

His children enjoy being with him and wish him all the happiness in the world.

PERSONALLY SPEAKING

Small towns, big families

Recently I headed up a major undertaking. I was one of the main coordinators for a benefit/celebration of life for Jim McClanahan. Jim died from cancer on July 28, 2013 and he always said that when he died, he didn’t want us grieving but to celebrate his life, to have a party in his memory.

Now this was the first time I had ever taken charge of anything like this but I had seen it done and thought “How hard could it be?”

I had faith that with the help of a small army , we could pull it off.

We booked the bands, fixed the food and gathered items to auction. I could do this in my sleep. Ha, was I ever wrong. Let me tell you, I don’t think I’ve ever heard my name more in one night than I did on Oct. 12. But I’d do it all over again in a heartbeat.

When I was knee deep in baskets and asking for donations, I realized that maybe this was bigger than I thought and it kept growing.

We recruited more help and more items came in.

In the end, I figured we had more baskets than we knew what to do with. Only two businesses told me no, which I understand in some ways. The economy is getting better but is still not what it once was.

Many businesses dug deep and gave big. I would like to take this opportunity to thank the many businesses that donated. Thank you just doesn’t seem like enough but it’s all I have. Most of you did not know Jim but gave anyway because he was a part of the community.

Donations are a huge part of putting something like this on, I came to learn. Money goes quick and I am by no means made of it.

Friends and family came out of the woodwork, asking, “What can I do?”

The family and friends that put countless hours and money into this. The businesses that donated. You are priceless to me. Because without donations or the countless hours it took, this would not have happened.

And in the end it came together and went off with out a hitch.

What did I learn?

To stretch before running around like a mad Indian. It has been a long while since I have been that sore all over. Maybe I’m out of shape or maybe I’m just a big wimp. Regardless, I couldn’t move the next morning.

In all seriousness, I learned that we can make a difference. One step at time, even if it’s just one person. We can make a difference. This is what the core of being from a small town and a huge family is all about. Helping one another. Caring enough to give selflessly.

I came from a small town down south and was raised with the core values, that is the glue that makes small towns hold close. You hold the door for the elderly, show respect, wave at that oncoming car, because even though you may not know them you can bet that you know someone who does know them and you come together in a time of need.

Jim was a wonderful man and the amount of people that showed up, friends and family and the many businesses that gave was proof of that.

I was a little apprehensive as if I, could do it or not, without completely losing my mind but I was willing to give it my best shot.

But the amount of people commenting on how great the party was proved that we pulled it off. And that in itself is something to be proud of.

But it wasn’t pride in myself that I was after or anybody else’s approval.

I wanted to make Jim proud, to do it right, to go big or go home. I think we all did that.

And you can bet that he was there dancing like a fool right there along with the rest of us.

GUEST COLUMN

What would a pipeline do to your land value?

Recently, we received a phone call from the Bluegrass Pipeline Project. This pipeline is being built by a partnership between two companies: Williams and Boardwalk. A portion of this line will pass through southern Grant County after cutting across Bracken and Pendleton counties. Its final destination will be the Gulf of Mexico where the “liquid gas” will be pumped onto ships bound for ports unknown.

The phone call talked about saving energy in the production of the cars at the Georgetown Toyota plant and the manufacture of plastics for these cars from the byproducts. Nowhere did I hear anything about a factory being built to produce this energy or the plastics. They did mention providing materials to their “Gulf Coast customers.” Who are these customers? Perhaps China?

My biggest question that I never got to ask is what exactly is in this pipe line? When they talk about “liquid natural gas” I am confused. Natural gas is not a liquid, so what is mixed with the gas? They also said something about “shale gas”. I believe this gas is released by pumping water and chemicals deep into the ground, sometimes 3,000 feet, by a process called fracking. The water breaks up the rock and shale and the pressure releases the gas. The left over water and chemicals go into the aquifer and poison the water table, ruining any natural wells that may be used for human or animal consumption. The excess “sludge” will be collected along with the gas and pumped into the pipeline to the Gulf.

Several people must have asked about leakage or what happens if the pipeline breaks. A good deal of time was given to explaining how safe this would be. The main office for the management of the line will be in Tulsa, Oklahoma. This is pretty far away from Kentucky! They also said someone will “walk” the pipeline and there will be fly-overs to check the area. The pipe will be buried 3 feet below the surface unless a farmer requires it to be deeper.

We have an AT&T fiber optic line that crosses our farm. No one has ever “walked” this line. It would be a difficult hike! Some parts of this line are buried up to 30 feet in places because of the terrain. We do not worry about this line because if it were to break, nothing would leak out. If the gas line were to break, the liquid and gas would spill out and perhaps catch on fire. Would we have to wait until someone could come from Tulsa to repair it? The AT&T line is on the back part of our property. When we built our new home, they called and wanted to know how close this new building would be to the line. We were OK and there were no problems, but if our septic lines had been too close, we would have been required to move our building site. Would you want to build a new home next to a gas pipe line?

This raises another question. What if you don’t want the gas line on your property? The company has threatened to do it anyway by the use of Eminent Domain. I had to look this one up. This law is used by regulated utility companies that are overseen by the Public Service Commission (PSC). The Bluegrass Pipeline is unregulated and therefore they are not looked after by the PSC. They do not qualify to use Eminent Domain.

It seems to me that the rural areas of Kentucky and many other states are being abused by this company. They are using our land to transport potentially dangerous materials and they will sell these for a profit to other countries. We will not benefit from these sales and our farm land could be ruined.

If you are approached by this company to allow the pipeline to cross your farm land, think carefully before you sign away what you have worked so hard for. Years ago, people came through Grant County and bought up the oil and mineral rights to many farms. At the time, this seemed like free money to the farmers. In later years, when the farm land came up for sale, these grants caused problems for the owners because they could not get a free and clear title to the property. What would a gas pipeline do to the value of your farm in the future?

DOWN AND DIRTY

Climate determines a tulip’s behavior

When it comes to bulbs we don’t always meet with consistent success. And, before you blame the chipmunks, the girl who mows the grass or the bulb company for their lack-luster performance, consider some of the other factors that influence how well flowering bulbs flower. Sunlight; crowded bulbs; pre-mature removal of foliage the previous season; or a winter rest period that wasn’t cold enough or long enough may play a role in poor performance. The life cycle of a bulb is different than other herbaceous perennials and there are a couple of things we need to understand about them before we start looking for blame.

By definition, a bulb is considered “a plant that spends part of its annual cycle underground as an enlarged storage organ.” This actually says much about what it needs in terms of a life cycle that consists of storing nutrients, resting, chilling and expending energy in the form of blooms.

Bulbs need a climate that suits each species’ needs. Bulbs will do well if they are grown in a similar climate to where the species originated and adapted. The timing and amount of rainfall, and temperatures have more to do with success and failure than many of us realize. For example, many tulip species shrink in size each consecutive year because we do not have a long enough season for them to rest and chill during the winter. This chilling period is necessary to set off a bio-chemical response in the bulb that triggers blooming. For many tulips, especially hybrids, the chilling period needs to last at least 16-20 weeks and the ground temperature should be below 45 degrees.

Other bulbs may rot in the ground during their dormant months in summer or in winter because rainfall is heavier than in their native environment; or it is induced out of the ground by untimely rains or temperate weather only to be hit by a heavy frost that it cannot withstand.

Jeneen WICHE

Weekend Gardener

Premature Cutting

Premature cutting of bulb foliage can lead to disappointing results, too. The foliage of a bulb is how it stores up the necessary nutrients through the process of photosynthesis. If you cut the foliage back too early (or braid, fold or bunch the leaves) the bulb will have little to offer the next year. You must leave the unsightly foliage for at least 6 weeks (or until it dies back naturally by early July). None of this is to say that we should give up on bulbs, to the contrary. There are many bulbs to choose from that are suitable to our climate just understand how the timing of weather patterns effects the performance of the bulb and select appropriate varieties for our climate. For example, tulipa tarda is a species tulip that performs well here, however the hybrid ‘Angelique’, nearly a six-inch bloom in the first year, showed only a couple blooms this spring that barely managed a three-inch diameter.

If you order bulbs from a catalogue check with companies about the size of their bulbs, if they are offering hundreds of bulbs for a cheap price don’t be surprised when you receive small bulbs too young to do anything until they have stored more energy. Reputable catalogue companies will send large, firm bulbs that are ready to bloom the following season. If you buy bulbs locally select them the same way you would onions at the grocery store. Since bulbs plump up as they store more food always choose bulbs that are firm and large, relative to the species’ size. Avoid soft, withered bulbs and check for mold or rot.

Once soil temperatures dip below about 60 degrees you can start planting bulbs. At this point the bulbs can put out some roots and establish themselves before for their winter chilling and rest period. The general rule of thumb when planting any bulb is rich, well-drained soil. The planting depth can be determined by measuring the diameter of the bulb and multiplying by three; so a bulb with a two-inch diameter should be planted 6 inches deep.

GCHS JROTC marches off to national competition

By Jamie Baker-Nantz
Editor

Today (Thursday morning), a caravan left Grant County High School at 4:30 a.m., headed for Molena, Georgia.

Their mission: bring home honors from the U.S. Army Raider Nationals.

Members of the GCHS JROTC Raiders have been running, sweating, climbing and preparing almost daily for this national invitation only event for weeks, even years.

Command Sergeant Major Charles Duffee, who oversees the GCHS program, said the trip to nationals began four years ago when Eric Napier served as battalion commander for the GCHS program.

“That’s when we began to prepare our team, knowing it would take us three to four years, to have a group that is ready to compete,” Duffee said.

“The last thing we wanted to do was take a team down that wasn’t ready to compete at this level, but now we are at the point where they deserve to go,” he said.

He predicted the winning team would have to complete a five-kilometer cross-country course in less than 20 minutes.

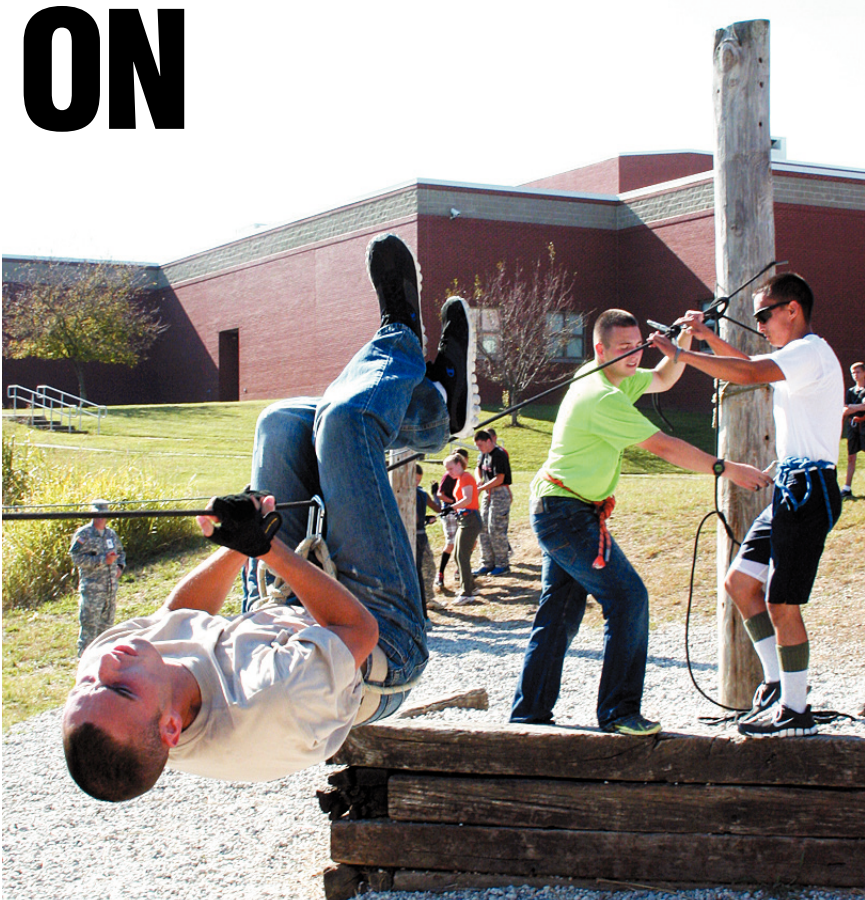

“That’s smoking,” he said.

Duffee likened the JROTC competitions to an eight to 10-hour football game.

“There are no rest breaks, no lunch, just competing all day long,” he said. “And you must have skill, endurance and strength.”

The GCHS group will be competing in three categories: a all male team, a mixed team with at least four female members and a female team.

Editor's Note: The popular Woody series by Leigh Anee Florence is back for a 10-week statewide literacy project. This year's theme is Kentucky agriculture. Do you take food for granted? Woody believes milk, eggs, chicken, and all his favorite treats originate from the grocery store or restaurant. Mom and Dad arrange for the family to visit farms all across Kentucky so the pups can see first-hand all the hard work farmers put forth in getting food from the ground to the grocery store. Read along as the pups plant corn, eat their first tomato right off the vine, gather eggs from the hen house, and even try to get chocolate milk from a brown cow.

Woody: Outstanding in His field

Chapter 8

Use the words in Chapter 8 to complete the word search.

“Don’t even think about it, son,” Pa commanded when he saw me getting ready to kill the slithering black snake I had found in the barn. “Leave him alone.”

“You mean we aren’t going to kill him?” I asked, proud I had gathered enough courage to even get close to the creature.

“Wouldn’t dream of it,” Pa said. “Snakes are good for farms. This little guy is a rat snake. He lives here in the barn and eats mice and rats. The snake gets his dinner, and we don’t have rodents.”

“Can I pick him up?” I asked.

“I didn’t say that,” Pa said, chuckling. “This snake might bite you, but it isn’t a venomous snake. Sometimes it’s hard to distinguish between venomous and non-venomous snakes. That’s why it’s best to leave them alone and let an adult know a snake is around.”

“Should we tell Mr. Parker?” I asked.

“He knows. This snake has been here for years, which is why you don’t see rats or mice.”

“How about I take the eggs you’ve already gathered and give them to Mrs. Parker,” Pa suggested. “You keep gathering the eggs and we’ll take what’s left to Granny. Mrs. Parker always insists we take some home.”

“We’re going to eat these?” I asked.

“Of course, but after we clean them,” Pa said.

“I’ve never eaten eggs that didn’t come from the grocery store.”

“Where do you think the store gets the eggs?” Pa asked.

When we returned home, it was lunchtime. I couldn’t imagine being hungry after the huge breakfast I had eaten, but I was. It was a good thing because Granny had cooked a feast, and it smelled scrumptious! The beautiful oak table was graced with pork chops, corn on the cob, green beans, stewed tomatoes, biscuits and strawberry preserves. And of course there was a pitcher of cold milk straight from Patty and Bonnie.

“We’ve never seen such a large delicious lunch,” Chloe commented before asking Granny if we could help with anything.

“Farmers are accustomed to eating a large noon-day meal,” Granny explained. “They get up early, milk and do the morning chores, eat breakfast, and then work hard all morning long, burning off all those breakfast calories. By lunch they’re starved and will need the energy to make it through the rest of the day. And just so you know, everything on the table was made or grown right here in Kentucky.”

“You bought it all at a Kentucky grocery store?” I asked, trying to understand.

“No, sweetie. All the vegetables – and the strawberries – were grown in our garden. The milk and the butter came from Bonnie and Patty, and the pork chops came from a friend who owns a pig farm,” Granny said. “You could say Pa and I are Kentucky Proud.”

“We’re proud of Kentucky too!” I said, happy I lived in the commonwealth.

“I know you are, doggies,” Pa said, “but Kentucky Proud is a program that encourages folks to purchase products that come from our state. The average meal travels 1,500 miles from somewhere far away to a table. During the travel process, the food loses its nutritional value and its taste, but if we buy Kentucky products the food doesn’t have to travel, which means its fresher, and we’re supporting our local farmers and keeping the money here in our state.”

“I wish we could eat Kentucky Proud products,” Chloe said, “but we don’t have any pigs or chickens or cows!”

“You can still eat Kentucky Proud,” Granny told us. “When your mom is at the grocery store, have her look for the Kentucky Proud symbol on the food. That will let her know it was made or grown right here in Kentucky. And if you ever go out for dinner or supper, make sure you go to a Kentucky Proud restaurant. You can find a list on their website, Kyproud.com.”

I couldn’t wait to give Mom that information. She was a terrific cook, but using Kentucky products would make her vittles even yummier.

After we finished lunch – or dinner as Granny called it – we ate fresh peach pie with a scoop of vanilla ice cream. No doubt about it, I loved life as a farmer.

“You doggies take a few minutes to enjoy yourselves while I check the weather forecast to see what tomorrow will bring. Then we will get back to work,” Pa said.

Chloe and I helped Granny with the dishes and then took a walk outside. We smelled a very interesting smell that we couldn’t quite identify. All of a sudden, we saw smoke coming from a barn. We ran back in the house as fast as we could and Pa told the pups that snakes are good for farms. What benefits do snakes provide on the earth?

What is the difference between venomous and non-venomous snakes? Name 3 venomous snakes found in Kentucky. Name 3 non-venomous snakes found in Kentucky. Do any of you have a snake for a pet?

Granny explained that farmers need a large noon-day meal to give them energy for the rest of the long work day. Imagine you are in charge of planning a large noon-day meal for the farmers in your area. The meal needs to include meat, grains, vegetables, fruit, and dairy. Write down would you serve. Make a grocery list. Woody would love to know your answer so feel free to email him!

Imagine the pups have just gathered a total of 48 eggs for Mrs. Parker and are taking them to the local store for her. The local store pays Mrs. Parker 6 cents per egg. On the way to the store, Woody dropped 2 of the eggs. How much money will they receive for the eggs? Mrs. Parker said the pups could keep 1% of the money. Woody and Chloe decide to split their 1%. How much money will each pup receive? How much money will that leave Mrs. Parker?

Pa checked the weather forecast for the following day. Why was it important for Pa to know the upcoming weather? Check your local newspaper to see the weather forecast. Watch the local news this evening and pay close attention to the meteorologist. Do the reports match?

Jaguars pounce on Grant Braves

By Wade Holland
Sports Correspondent

While there are obvious improvements being made each game, the end result for the Grant County Braves remained the same.

Grant County missed the playoffs for the fifth consecutive season, and sixth time in seven seasons since Kentucky went to a five-class system and the Braves moved up from Class 3A to 5A, with a 49-6 loss Oct. 25 to the visiting Cooper Jaguars.

While both teams entered the game winless in district play, it was Cooper's experience that won out against the Braves. The Jaguars returned several players from last year's team that made its way to the Class 5A state championship game.

Just like Conner High School did the previous week, Cooper came out of the gates strong and built an insurmountable lead in the first 24 minutes of play. The Jaguars scored three touchdowns in the first quarter and two in the second period to take a 36-0 lead into the locker room at halftime.

The Jaguars added two more second-half touchdowns to extend their lead to 49-0 before Grant County got on the board during the first minute of the fourth quarter when Marcus Rayburn returned a kickoff 86 yards for the Braves' touchdown.

Cooper, clearly the bigger and deeper team, dominated offensively with 384 yards of total offense compared to only 145 for the Braves. Cooper running backs carried the ball 30 times for 252 yards, while the Jaguars passing attack was accurate with 132 yards on 12-of-16 pass attempts.

Grant County's offense was spread equally between the run game and the passing attack, with the backfield accounting for 70 yards on 26 touches and 75 yards through the air on 12-of-20 pass attempts.

The Braves had one of their better passing games of the season with Michael McLean completing 78 percent of his passes, going 7-for-9 through the air for 45 yards. Joseph Knipp hit on 45 percent of his passes, completing five of 11 throws for 30 yards. Both quarterbacks threw one interception each.

Hunter Lawson, Grant County's leading rusher on the season, carried the ball 13 times and gained 41 yards, an average of 3.2 yards per touch. Knipp averaged 3.5 yards per carry, gaining 21 yards on six carries. McLean gained seven yards on six carries, while Derek Sutherland had one yard on one carry for the Braves.

Blake Johnson was Grant County's leading receiver with 31 yards on six receptions with a team-best long catch of 13 yards. Lawson was targeted only two times and accounted for 17 yards, while Rayburn hauled down one pass for 11 yards. Sutherland caught two passes for 11 yards, while Brady Vaughn pulled in one reception for five yards to round out the Braves' offense.

Andy Engle led Grant County's defensive push with five tackles. Dakota Willoughby led the team with four solo tackles and one assist for a total of 4.5 stops in the game. Zach Spohn was next with four tackles, followed by Ryan Turley with 3.5.

Quentin Haubner and Tristen Wallace added three tackles each for the Braves, while Dylan Fultz, Zane Burch, Colton Smith and Marcus Rayburn chipped in two apiece. Robert Spohn had 1.5 tackles, while Michael McLean, Quinton Rayburn, Conner Biddle, Derek Sutherland and B.J. Adams contributed one tackle each for Grant County.

The Braves will finish out their regular season on Nov. 1 when non-district foe North Laurel visits Dry Ridge. Game time is set for 7:30 p.m.

Grant JV soccer team ends with successful season

By Wade Holland
Sports Correspondent

On the heels of a successful varsity season, Grant County soccer coach Garrett Griffith immediately started planning and working for next year and beyond. Judging by the success enjoyed at the junior varsity level, the head coach has plenty to work with in his efforts to take the program to the next level.

The Grant County junior varsity soccer team recently completed its season with a record of 9-4-1, more than doubling last season's win total. And the Braves did it with a roster dominated by freshmen and middle schoolers, while playing a schedule of teams made up mostly of sophomores and juniors.

Highlights of the season included a second-place finish at the Frankfort Junior Varsity Invitation Tournament. The Braves also held their own in a tough regional JV tournament.

"It was a good season for us and I'm beyond proud of the guys," said JV head coach Logan Barnett. "You couldn't ask for more from the guys. They were easy to work with. They played hard and worked hard and always gave it their all. They are a great group of guys."

Among the team's strengths was a work ethic that was second-to-none, said Barnett.

"They guys really worked hard," he said. "And you could see the improvement each week. They really wanted to win and they worked hard for it."

While the team was made up of young players, mainly from the seventh grade to freshmen, leadership was not a problem. In fact, it was another strong point for the Braves.

"Our freshmen really stepped up and helped the younger guys. That was a major benefit for us," Barnett said.

Grant County averaged better than three goals per game. The defense was equally impressive, with several players filling the role as goalkeeper during the season.

And while the team was by no means a one-man show, Brandon Wolfe was a name that came up often for the Braves.

"Brandon was maybe our strongest defensive player," said Barnett. "Anytime someone tried to get by him, he did everything he could to stop them. He was like a brick wall on defense."

While Wolfe was a standout on defense, Barnett was quick to point out teamwork was the number one reason behind the team's success, as well as quality depth.

"We had good depth," said Barnett. "We may not have had the most players, but our skill level and athleticism from top to bottom was very good."

With success at both the varsity and junior varsity level, and only a small number of players graduating from the program, Barnett, a 2011 graduate of Grant County High School who also played for the Braves' soccer team, sees a bright future for the program.

"These guys can be good if they continue to work hard," he said. "There is a lot of great talent here."

REGIONAL RUN REACHES END

The 2013 season came to an end Oct. 22 for the Grant County Lady Braves in the second round of the 8th Region tournament. The team lost 3-0 to South Oldham High School at Shelby County. Despite a 7-11-1 record, the Lady Braves went the furthest in the postseason in the program's history.

Former GCHS Braves basketball player Tyler Carr signs to play at Shawnee State.

Tyler Carr signs with Shawnee State

Former Grant County Braves basketball player Tyler Carr has received a full athletic scholarship for men's basketball to Shawnee State University in Portsmouth, Ohio. Carr signed his letter of intent Oct. 25th, with many family, friends and teammates on hand to show their support.

Carr was named to the District All-Tournament team as a sophomore and junior as well as All 8th Region and to the Courier-Journal Honorable mention All State team for the 2012-2013 season for the Braves. Carr also scored 1,280 points in his career and led the Braves to their first undefeated 6-0 district record before moving on to Shelby Valley High School in eastern Kentucky.

"We are extremely proud to have a player with such a tremendous work ethic and dedication such as Tyler," said Shawnee Head Coach Jeff Hamilton.

Shawnee State University competes in the highly competitive NAIA Mid-South Conference.

"It has been a pleasure to coach Tyler throughout his high school career," said Shelby Valley Coach, Jim Hicks.

The GCHS raiders are part of the 7th Brigade, which consists of team's from Kentucky, Tennessee, Ohio and parts of Indiana, West Virginia and Michigan.

"The road to the competition didn't just happen, it's been the kids working hard to get there," Duffee said.

During the last four years, the GCHS JROTC has seen increasing success at competitions.

Four years ago, under Eric Napier, the team won 36 trophies followed by 38 trophies under Cory Gray, 47 trophies under Jacob Parker and 53 last year under Randy Hubbard.

"We've got kids on a good day who can compete at this level and I feel like, by the time, we get there we'll be in the hunt," Duffee said.

The JROTC program at GCHS began with the 2005-2006 school year with three students. There are now 250 students enrolled. They train at least four days a week, often more as competition season approaches and all members must maintain a 3.0 Grade Point Average or they are not allowed to compete. Duffee said there is a misconception about the JROTC program and classes because it's not recruiting for the military.

"We teach political science, U.S. history and government, health, physical training and geography," he said. "It's not an easy curriculum and we're committed to doing everything we can to make sure the cadets are successful at life."

The JROTC program was the first at GCHS to receive national certification, Duffee said.

The trip to nationals cost $11,500. The Grant County Board of Education allocated $, while the rest came from fundraising efforts.

The Raiders also have an active parent organization that travels with them, cooks meals at the competitions and plans fundraisers. Teresa Hill serves as president of the boosters.

"We are fortunate to have a boosters group that works hard to support us," Duffee said. "We couldn't do it without them, as well as the support of the community."

Win or lose, Duffee said the cadets will work hard to bring honor to the competition. The GCHS "Dog Soldiers" will be competing against 125 other JROTC programs.

GCHS will be lead by Cadet Alex Smith, battalion commander; Cadet Sarah Leonard, battalion executive officer and Cadet Cole Simpson, command sergeant major.

"It's going to be a dog fight, but we're good enough to be at the top of the pile," he said.

ATHLETE OF THE WEEK

FOOTBALL PLAYER OF THE WEEK is sponsored by Carolyn Thompson of State Farm Insurance.

FOOTBALL PLAYER OF THE WEEK - The Grant County Football Player of the Week for the game at Conner on October 18 is sophomore Hunter Lawson. Lawson led the team in rushing, had two receptions and punted four times for a 38-yard average.

HISTORY IS MADE! Three teams move on to championship games Nov. 3

History was made last week for Grant County Youth Football. For the first time, all three teams (the Midgets, Mighty Pro and Power House) will play in the Greater North Central Youth Football League 2013 Superbowl on Saturday, Nov. 3 at Grant County High School.

Last weekend, the Midgets, who are undefeated this season, won over the Owen County Rebels by a score of 28-0.

The Mighty Pro team, who are also undefeated this season, beat Gallatin County by a score of 33-0.

The Power House team, with a record of 7-2, bested Bracken County by a score of 13-12.

This is the first time in the history of the league that any county has had all three teams make it to the Superbowl.

Grant County will host the Superbowl this year at GCHS with the Midgets playing at 1:30 p.m. against Bracken County followed by the Mighty Pros facing off against Bracken County at 3 p.m. The Power House team will play against Pendleton County at 4:30 p.m.

Admission is $2 for adults, $1 for students or $5 per family. Children 4 and under are free.

GCHS annual ‘powder puff’ football game benefits Autism Speaks

By Jamie Baker- Nantz
Editor

Hailey Leach, a sophomore at Grant County High School, is on a mission to raise awareness of autism and she’s taking her game to the Grant County High School football field on Nov. 8.

Leach, the GCHS Family Career and Community Leaders of America Chapter president, will be leading a ‘powder puff’ football team against the Williamstown High School FCCLA Chapter at 5 p.m.

The cost to play is $15, which includes a T-shirt. Gate admission is $1 and concessions will be available for purchase.

During half time of the game, the GCHS Marching Band will face off against the WHS Marching Band in a battle of the bands.

Proceeds from the event will be given to Autism Speaks.

Grant County has held an annual powder puff game and donated the proceeds to various charities. Last year, more than $500 was raised for the Dragon Fly Foundation.

Autism Speaks is near to Leach’s heart since her brother, Matthew, was diagnosed with autism when he was 3 years old.

Hailey watched Matthew struggle to fit in when he started middle school because other students did not understand him.

“I see it as having a difference and not having a disability,” Leach said. “If other people were made aware, I believe they’d see it that way as well.”

She developed an anti-bullying program that focused on students with special needs. She presented it to classes at Grant County Middle School, took it to the Kentucky FCCLA Convention where she won gold and followed that up with gold at the National FCCLA Convention in Nashville this summer.

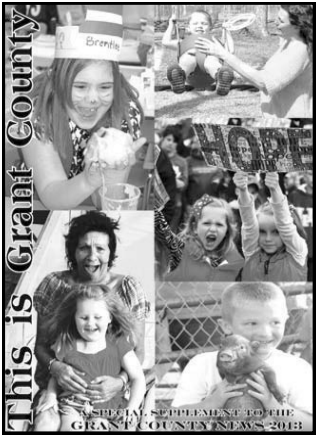

“It’s amazing for a freshman to do something like that,” said GCHS FCCLA Advisor Whitney Hilterbran.

In prior years, the powder puff game was usually between GCHS students, but since WHS has a new FCCLA chapter this year, Hilterbran said she along with Carla Arnold Smithers, the WHS FCCLA Chapter advisor, were looking for ways to get the students to interact and involved in a greater cause.

Hilterbran said FCCLA’s purpose is to focus on multiple role of family members, wage earners and community leaders.

“It’s about character development and FCCLA is the only organization that is student-led with family as the focus,” Hilterbran said.

Thanksgiving meals delivered

The Williamstown Baptist Church is again delivering Hope Thanksgiving meals to shut-ins and those in need throughout Grant County.

In 2012, this project reached 650 people in the community, the largest number since this ministry started.

The meals will be delivered by noon on Thanksgiving Day.

Monetary donations will be accepted to help provide the meals. Checks should be made payable to the Williamstown Baptist Church. Note the donation is for the Hope Thanksgiving Day project.

If there is someone in need of a hot Thanksgiving meal with all of the trimmings, contact the church at 859-824-4102 and ask for Diane.

Reservations must be made by Friday, Nov. 22 in order to prepare for the number of meals needed.

For more information, call the WBC at 859-824-4102.

Body found on I-75 identified

The partially decomposed body of a female found Aug. 27 by mowing crews on Interstate 75 north of Crittenden has been identified.

The body was identified as Melinda Sue Ingram, 28, of New Richmond, Ohio.

State mowing crews reported they had found something suspicious to police, which later confirmed it was a body.

A cause of death is still undetermined and the investigation is ongoing by Kenton County Police.

Anyone with information regarding Ingram’s death is asked to call Detective Paul Anderson at 859-392-1952.

Wright's Stables has right stuff as family business

By Jamie Baker-Nantz
Editor

Wright, of Dry Ridge, died in 2009, but his equestrian ways were left behind to his children, Cassandra Simpson and Todd Wright, who continue to operate Wright's Stables today.

Cassandra believes she might be responsible for her father's lifelong love when she begged him to let her get involved with horses for a 4-H project.

"It all started because I wanted a horse," she said, with a laugh, sitting inside the family's neatly kept barn on Knoxville Road.

Henry went on to show and breed horses and was named American Quarter Horse Association Breeder of the Year before his death. The faces of his two favorite horses, Sam and Rock, were engraved on his coffin.

In tough economic times, some families might have been tempted to sell off the farm or make a living elsewhere, but for the siblings, there was no question that they would continue the family business that got an accidental start.

"I wanted a place to ride, so we built the barn and then people just kept stopping and asking what it was and then they wanted to rent stables so we ended up building three additional barns," she said.

Wright's Stables boards about 40 horses and offers Western riding lessons. They have several 4-H members who use the facility for practice. Other offerings include trail riding, an indoor and outdoor riding arena, tack shop and hay for sale.

Cassandra said she learned many lessons from her father.

"When my Pop was alive, we showed constantly," she said. "We were always at a horse show because he just had a knack for it."

Weather – hot or cold – didn't phase the pair.

"Sometimes it was so cold out, we'd be freezing, but he'd stay right there working with me. He taught me everything that I know," Cassandra said.

Her mother, Shirley Wright, who died on May 1, 2013, didn't train but acted as cheerleader and kept her husband and daughter fed and clothed.

Those lessons Cassandra took to heart and is now passing them onto others.

"I love to work with horses, everything about them and I love to work with young riders," she said. She works with two dozen 4-H riders on a weekly basis. Her youngest rider, 18 months old, took second place at a horse show at the Grant County Fair.

Sierra Schmitt has been taking lessons from Simpson for the last eight years.

She was the 4-H High Point State Champion at the Kentucky State Fair this summer.

Schmitt rides most every day, except during soccer season, when she manages to still squeeze in three or four days of training per week.

"I can't explain it," Schmitt said, as she prepared her horse to ride. "When you're on a horse you don't think about how much time you spend training."

Sierra and Cassandra spent most of their summer working in the ring preparing for the state fair.

"There was so much good competition there that I didn't think I had a chance to win," Schmitt said.

"I knew she'd be in the top 10 because she worked her butt off," Cassandra said.

Schmitt said Cassandra is more than just her trainer. She's become like family.

Cassandra often travels with her students when they go to competitions.

"When she's not there it makes me nervous," Schmitt said. "She pushes you to work hard, but then she's always there for you."

Todd said he can attest to his sister's way with horses and people.

"No matter how much noise, I can still tune everything out and still hear the sound of her voice directing me and then I realize I'm doing exactly what she says when I'm on a horse," Todd said.

The sister/brother duo plan to keep the family business going as long as they possibly can.

"Dad told mom before he passed that she might have to sell the farm, but she kept it going and we plan to do the same thing," Cassandra said. "Horses and kids are my passion, seeing them grow is just amazing."

NOTICE OF COMMISSIONER'S SALE
DOUGLAS SCOTT ELDRIDGE AKA DOUGLAS S. ELDRIDGE, et al
DEFENDANT
By virtue of a Judgment and Order of Sale entered in the Grant Circuit Court on October 2, 2013, I will sell at public auction on the front steps of the Grant County Courthouse, the property described herein located in Grant County, Kentucky, on WEDNESDAY, November 13, 2013, at the hour of 11:00 a.m., prevailing time, and more particularly described as follows:
Said real estate is situated in Grant County, Kentucky, and bounded as follows:
Being all of Lot 4 of Section 1 of Toole Brothers Southern Hills Subdivision as shown on the plat for said subdivision which is recorded in Plat Book 2, Page 31, of the Grant County Court Clerk's records, at Williamstown, Kentucky.
This property is conveyed subject to all restrictions, conditions, and easements contained in prior deeds or on public record.
Being the same property conveyed to Douglas Scott Eldridge and Sharon Lee Eldridge, husband and wife, from Timothy F. Jackson and Linda Jackson, husband & wife, by Deed dated 10/08/2004, recorded 11/23/2004, Deed Book 304, page 8, Grant County Clerk's Records, and being known as 103 A Southern Dr., Williamstown, KY 41097.
Property Address: 103 A Southern Dr., Williamstown, KY 41097
There is not a mobile home, doublewide and/or manufactured home included in the sale.
The amount of money to be raised by this sale is the principal sum of One hundred and fourteen thousand four hundred and forty-five dollars and seventy-six cents ($114,445.76), together with accrued interest thereon from September 1, 2010 to July 31, 2013 in the amount of Twenty Thousand Four hundred and forty-five dollars and twenty-five cents ($20,445.25), and interest thereafter at the rate of 6.12500 ($19.20) per day until the entire amount has been paid in full; and together with reasonable attorney's fees and court costs in the amount of One-Thousand One-Hundred Dollars ($1,100.00);
The real estate shall be sold on the terms of 10% cash at the time of the sale, except that said deposit shall be waived if the Plaintiff is the successful bidder at the sale, and the balance on a credit of thirty (30) days bearing interest at the rate of 12% per annum for the date of sale. When the purchase price is paid in full, the deed will be delivered to the purchaser. It is further provided that the property sold includes insurable improvements and the successful bidder at said sale shall, at bidder's own expense, carry fire and extended insurance coverage on said improvements from the date of sale until the purchase price is fully paid in the amount of the Court appraised value of said improvements or the amount of the unpaid balance of the purchase price, whichever is less, at minimum, with a loss payable clause to the Commissioner of the Grant Circuit Court and the Plaintiff herein. Failure of the purchasers to obtain such insurance shall not affect the validity of the sale or the purchaser's liability thereunder, but shall entitle, but not require, the Plaintiff to obtain said insurance and furnish the policy or premium thereon or the proper portion thereof shall be charged to the purchaser as purchaser's costs.
The aforesaid property shall be sold free and clear of all liens and encumbrances, except the following:
a. All unpaid state, county and city real estate taxes for the year 2013;
b. Easements, restrictions, and stipulations of record;
c. Assessments for public improvements levied against the property;
d. Any facts which an inspection and or accurate survey of the property may disclose.
For further information, see the Final Judgment and Order of Sale and pleadings of record in the Office of the Circuit Court of Grant County.

Returning soldier surprises family at Country Pumpkins

By Bryan Marshall
Staff Writer

Staff Sgt. Nicholas Boller waits anxiously in the snack shack at Country Pumpkins in Dry Ridge for a familiar car to pull up.

Boller, a member of the Kentucky National Guard 1st Battalion, 623rd Field Artillery out of Glasgow, has not seen his four children since he was deployed in January to Jordan.

“It seems longer than that,” the Florence man said, checking the time again on his cellphone.

Boller shared a homecoming his wife, Anna, on Oct. 23 when she picked him up in Glasgow.

However, the Florence couple decided that they would surprise their four children, 12-year-old Nicholas, 10-year-old Emily, 8-year-old Bracen and 6-year-old Parker with their dad’s appearance the following day.

“They know that I am coming home sometime soon, but they have no idea it’s now though,” Boller said “My wife thought it would be really cool to do something like this. I followed along. It’s going to be awesome. I can’t wait to see them. I’m sitting here, like, ‘Hurry up, time.’”

Boller has been in the military more than 17 years.

His first tour led him overseas as part of Homeland Security.

Then, his next mission was in Iraq.

The latest tour brought him to Jordan, where he was able to still talk to his wife almost everyday and receive mail from his children.

“The kids drew me all kinds of things,” Boller said. “They would write me letters. I can’t say I’m great at writing letters, but I did a little bit back to them.”

With mom having picked up the children up from school and mere minutes away from Country Pumpkins, Boller gets into place behind a straw bale at the entrance of a maze.

With sprinkling rain falling down, Anna ushers the four kids to stand in front of the straw bale maze for a picture.

As they smile for the camera, their dad calmly walks out next to them.

With looks of shock, the children yell out, in unison, “Daddy,” before going in for a group hug.

The group was all smiles with a few tears.

“I missed you,” said Parker, the youngest.

After pausing to look up at her dad, she continued.

“You look different,” Parker said, bringing Boller to laugh.

Now home with his family, Boller will get to celebrate Halloween with his family and his youngest daughter’s birthday on Oct. 28.

“One of the best things about this is I didn’t miss a holiday last year,” he said. “I missed all birthdays this year, but I’m here for Thanksgiving and Christmas. That’s awesome. That usually doesn’t happen. You usually miss a Christmas and it’s hard to explain to your kids why you weren’t there for Christmas.”

BAND

In the finals, Madisonville-North Hopkins earned the top score of 90.86 to take the championship. Anderson County placed second with a 89.5 score and Grant County finished third with a 86.9 score, .8 points ahead of fourth-place finisher South Oldham.

The WHS Band of Spirit finished second in its semi at Butler Traditional High School with a 87.9 score, followed by Murray (86.1) and Paris (84.1.)

Beechwood, who won the Class A state title, also placed first in the semi-finals with a 91.15 score.

WHS finished second in the semi with a 87.9 score, followed by Murray (86.1) and Paris (84.1.) In the finals, Beechwood earned the top score of 87 to take the championship. Murray placed second, scoring only a tenth of a point above WHS.

“I was just happy that we even made finals,” said WHS senior Hannah Riley. “Getting third place was pretty awesome.”

FILING

The appointee would have to file for and win the election in order to keep the seat.

With her retirement, Conrad has overseen her last election night, meaning an end to long nights and countless vote tallies.

“It will be a relief in a way,” Conrad said with a laugh. “That will be the least thing I will miss.”

Judge-Executive Darrell Link previously has indicated that he also would not be seeking a fifth term.

“I am going to do my best to follow the Gospel of Matthew; ‘Therefore do not worry about tomorrow, for tomorrow will worry about itself. Each day has enough trouble of its own.’ Consequently, I will leave the worrying to someone else. Nevertheless, I hope to spend an excessive amount of time with my wife and family and church family.”

Sheriff Chuck Dills said he plans to run for re-election, along with first-term jailer Terry Peeples.

“It takes awhile to get things in place and get them going,” Peeples said. “It can’t be done overnight. I think in our first term here we’ve accomplished a lot of good things.”

Rep. Brian Linder, R-Dry Ridge, who is finishing his first year as a legislator after being a Grant County magistrate, also will be seeking re-election.

“I look forward to meeting not only the challenges of Grant County, but to the new parts of the 61st District of southern Kenton County, southern Boone County and northern Scott County,” Linder said. “I recently started fundraising for the election next year and have already raised half of the total I raised for the entire 2012 election cycle. I appreciate the over whelming messages of support from our community over the past 10 months and look forward to being the voice of reason during the 2014 session.”

The deadline to file for the Nov. 4 general election for races that are not in the primary, including mayor, city council, school board and city commission, is Aug. 12.

CANCER

back to work since her diagnosis because I want to spend as much time as possible with her plus I’m her best advocate and number one cheerleader and motivator.”

The initial diagnosis was stage-two lymphoma because the cancer was in Skyler’s neck and chest.

Two days later, a full-body CAT scan showed that she had it in her abdomen and pelvic area, making the cancer stage three.

Further test results confirmed last week that traces of the cancer were in Skyler’s bone marrow, making it stage four lymphoma.

“They told me I had a 95-percent cure rate,” Skyler said. “It doesn’t mean it’s any less curable (with stage-four cancer.) It just means it’s going to take a little longer and there’s a little more aggressive treatment.”

No time was wasted getting treatments started to battle the cancer.

In a three-day span about two weeks ago, Skyler saw two different doctors and had surgery to remove lymph nodes.

Two weekends ago, she spent three days in the hospital receiving her first chemotherapy treatments.

“The first day it was four hours,” Skyler said. “The second day it was three hours. The third it was two. It honestly wasn’t as bad as I was expecting it to be. I was very fortunate that I didn’t throw up or anything. No nausea. It wasn’t until (the first day home from the hospital) that it all hit we. That’s when I started feeling bad. Just extremely achy.”

When she returned home from her stay in the hospital, Skyler was welcomed with a surprise from her friends and teachers at Williamstown High School.

The yearbook staff, supervised by teacher Sonya Linder, decorated the front of Skyler’s house with a banner with the phrase, “Though they are stormy, my Sky will NOT fall,” on it.

Countless numbers of Post-it notes were also scattered across the house with personal messages for Skyler. As editor-in-chief of the WHS yearbook, Skyler came up with the idea of using Post-It notes as a theme for the yearbook.

“I wasn’t feeling good and I just wanted to get home,” Skyler said about the surprise. “As soon as we pulled in the driveway, I was like, ‘Oh my gosh.’ I told my Mom to stop because I just wanted to get a picture. I was just staring at it and thinking about all the time and effort that went into it. There were middle schoolers who don’t even know me that signed it and high schoolers and teachers took the time. I started crying. It’s amazing to see that many people come together for one person to make them feel loved and important and knowing that they were behind you.”

Skyler underwent her fourth chemo treatment last weekend during an outpatient visit.

Along with taking medicine and being monitored daily, she will continue chemo treatments every 21 days.

Skyler is still getting used to adapting to having cancer and dealing with side effects of the treatments.

“Even though I feel good there are still certain things that I can’t do,” she said. “That’s what’s frustrating for me right now. I realize that I can’t push my body as quick. Getting ready for school I usually allow myself an hour. I guess I’ll need an hour and 45 minutes now. I got into the hot shower and I passed out because my body can’t handle that extreme temperature change anymore now that I’m on chemo. It’s little things. I’m still figuring it out.”

Physically, Skyler still looks as healthy as ever, but it is her charismatic personality that remains unchanged as well.

From her constant smile to the unwavering positivity that she possesses, Skyler is determined to not let her diagnosis get her down.

“There’s no need to be like, ‘Oh,

I’m the person with cancer,’” she said. “That’s just so unnecessary. Yeah, I have cancer, but I beat it. That’s what’s important to me. To my knowledge, it’s not very common that we have childhood cancer patients here at school. If you show that you can overcome anything, that’s going to inspire others. That’s real important to me. If I have people looking up to me, I don’t want to be the one that wilted. I don’t want to be the weak one that barely made it. If I can attack this with a passion that doesn’t die, I know I will be fine.”

Skyler said she is not scared of the fight she is beginning.

Despite her strength and determination, however, there is one thing that she is not looking forward to.

Losing her hair from the chemo treatments.

“I know that sounds really silly and materialistic, but, as a girl, that’s really important,” Skyler said. “By no means does that define who I am, but that’s when people know you’re sick. You can’t hide it anymore. I feel like seeing me right now you wouldn’t know I was sick.”

Doctors told her to expect to start losing her hair seven to 14 days after her first chemo treatment.

Deanna said she has already been amazing at her daughter’s strength.

“In just two weeks she has endured two surgeries, two CT scans, a PET scan, multiple IVs, two admissions and four doses of chemo,” she said. “She has never expressed any sadness, pity or anger. She just says she has to kick cancer’s butt, grow her hair back and wants to go to college next fall.”

School is important to Skyler, as shown by her perfect-attendance record.

She is a member of the tennis team, FCCLA, the pep club and the yearbook club.

Although she will attend school as much as her body allows as she goes through this battle, Skyler will maintain her perfect attendance by being designated a homebound student.

She attended school like always on Monday, but because her counts were too low she was out the following two days.

If the numbers increase enough, Skyler will return to class Thursday. School is where she would rather be without a doubt.

“Once you get everyone around you again, everything clicks and it works,” Skyler said. “It’s awesome. I feel like I’m right back in the swing of things. Having your friends behind you does wonders.”

As Skyler’s fight continues against cancer, each day is a step closer to beating the lymphoma.

Each day is also a step closer to graduation day, a moment Skyler refuses to miss no matter how she is feeling.

“Oh, I will be there,” she said. “I don’t care. If I have to wear a mask, I’ll be there. I will do whatever I have to do to be there.”

PIPELINE

"While the final route is dependent upon the outcome of easement negotiations with landowners as well as input from regulatory agencies, we estimate the pipeline will cross about five miles of land in Grant County," said Tom Droege, spokesperson for the Bluegrass Pipeline.

In its first three weeks of negotiations with landowners for easements, Bluegrass Pipeline secured easements in nine of the 13 counties the project plans to cross in Kentucky.

"We have purchased easements in all the counties where we have land agents," Droege said. "We are very early in the process and are still staffing up our land team. We may be able to provide more information once we are much further along in the process."

Given the progress made to date, Droege said the company is on track to complete the acquisition process early next year.

Bluegrass Pipeline expects to pay Kentucky landowners between $30 million and $50 million for easements.

The typical easement has a permanent width of 50 feet and an additional 50 feet of temporary adjacent workspace to be used only during the installation of the pipeline.

According to a letter sent to landowners, the organization bases offers on the following criteria:

- A fair price, based upon local land values and number of acres needed, for the privilege of establishing a permanent easement across a landowner's property.
- Additional compensation for temporary easements needed during initial construction.
- Additional compensation for disturbance to crops, grazing lands, timber, etc. directly impacted by the installation of the pipeline.

"Every property is different - just like in a neighborhood where each home is unique and valued based on a number of factors," Droege said. "We work through a local appraisal process to determine the value of a particular easement and we offer above market value because we want to provide landowners a financial incentive."

Technical aspects related to pipeline construction and operations, including operating pressure and inspection protocols are not negotiable as they relate to the safe and compliant operation and maintenance of the pipeline as required by the U.S. Department of Transportation's Pipeline and Hazardous Materials Safety Administration, according to the landowner letter.

Bluegrass Pipeline officials said they will follow the requirements of such environmental regulatory agencies as the Kentucky Department of Environmental Protection, the Kentucky Heritage Council, the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers and the Kentucky Fish & Wildlife Service, rather than addressing these types of issues in each easement.

"We understand the concerns that have been expressed regarding the need for the project, environmental protection and pipeline safety," Rob Hawksworth, manager of Land, GIS and Permitting for Williams, said in the letter. "We will ensure that the construction and operation of the pipeline will meet or exceed all legal and regulatory requirements."

Droege said that pipeline officials expect to begin construction late next year and place the pipeline in service by late 2015.

As for whether Bluegrass Pipeline will attempt to use eminent domain to acquire easements, Droege said negotiations are the preferred method.

"Kentucky landowners have embraced our project and we are working together to develop individual easements that meet both our needs," he said. "This is the approach we prefer and will continue to use."

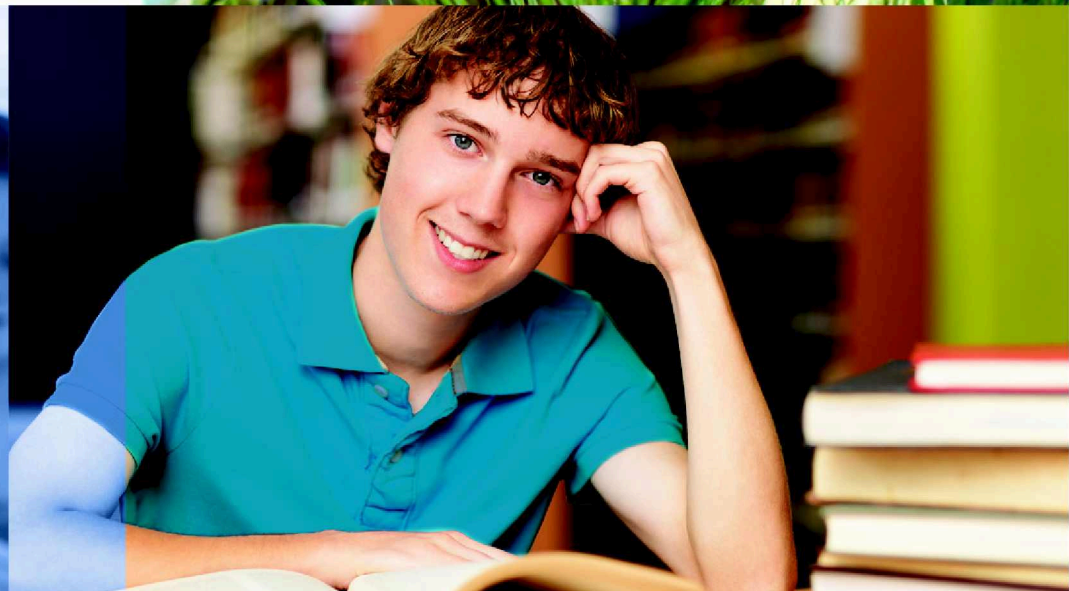

"I think it's important to note that we are not buying property," Droege said. "The property owner still owns the property and can still use as before for farming, grazing and other uses. We are merely buying the right to have access to the easement area for pipeline installation, monitoring, maintenance. After only a few weeks working with landowners to purchases easements, we are pleased with the progress."
